

FIRST FULL STORY OF THE RICHESON TRAGEDY

(In Serial Form)

By CLEMENT L. POLLOCK.

Chapter I.

The Boston newspaper on October 16, last, contained a story of half a column, or more, telling of the probable death of Miss Avis Linnell, sixteen years old, of Hinghamport, the girl at the house of the Young Women's Christian Association in Boston on Saturday evening.

The information given to the public on Monday was to the effect that Avis Linnell, bearing her former address, Rev. Charles V. T. Richeson, was about to wed another girl, became despondent, swallowed poison and died in a few minutes.

At that time Richeson was the pastor of the Immanuel Baptist Church of Cambridge. Avis Linnell was studying music at the New England Conservatory. Although Avis Linnell died at 7:30 on Saturday evening the fact did not reach the newspapers in time for their Sunday editions. In the Monday newspapers it was related that Avis Linnell had read of the engagement of Richeson to Miss Violet Edmunds in a Cambridge weekly newspaper, and that she had procured cyanide of potassium and killed herself.

Felt Sorry for Richeson.

The body of Avis Linnell was taken to her home on Monday. The public looked upon the tragedy as one of heart break. They sympathized with the family of the girl, sympathized with Richeson, with Miss Violet Edmunds, the other girl.

The Edmunds family lived at No. 18 Devon road, Brookline. It was a rich family. Miss Violet Edmunds, wealthy in her own right, is a graduate of Vassar. None of the reporters went to the Edmunds home on Monday and asked Mrs. Edmunds about the engagement of her daughter to Richeson. Mrs. Edmunds said:

"My daughter is engaged to Mr. Richeson. I see no reason why the engagement should be broken. I know nothing about Miss Linnell, except what has been printed in the newspapers."

In one of the newspaper reports of the death of Avis Linnell, this statement was made:

"Miss Linnell went to her self-imposed death with a smile on her face and brought her on her lips. She had taken dinner at the Y. M. C. A. home and had spent the early part of the evening with her girl friends in one of the parties. She chatted and laughed and was apparently carefree and happy."

His Sunday Sermon.

It was announced that Richeson had preached Sunday morning and Sunday evening, October 15, and that in the morning he was well.

Let the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart be acceptable to Thee, O Lord, my strength and my Redeemer.

Richeson lived at this time in Cambridge. The reporters had attempted to see him, but had failed. They found he had gone to the home of his father, Miss Edmunds, and that he refused to be seen. He was generally supposed to be in deep distress because of the tragedy and the publicity that it had given to him and Miss Edmunds.

In the meantime, Elder Alexander Young, regarded as a very able man in the medical profession, had been

A small piece of white paper, apparently a card, in which the poison had been wrapped, was found on the floor. There was no note. The girl was unable to speak and died in twenty-five minutes.

When the girl died, friends at the Y. M. C. A. home decided to call Richeson on the telephone. They knew about him, and as he was a relative near down on the Cape and could not be reached easily, Richeson was communicated with by telephone.

"I remember that I happened Miss Linnell at Hingham three years ago. I knew her well, and she was a very nice girl. I do not know why I should be called to the matter. You know the names of her parents, do you not?"

Denied Linnell With Girl.

Min Richeson went on to say:

"I responded that I did, but we felt that he was her father. In that case he was out to lunch with him during the day. It was not that he was the most easily accessible of all her relatives and friends."

"Out to lunch with me today," said Mr. Richeson, "my what do you mean by that? I was not out to lunch with Miss Linnell today."

"Well," I responded, "the medical examination was made by you and your wife. I was not out to lunch with her, but I was not out to lunch with her either."

"The question took me entirely by surprise, coming from the mouth of a clergyman and not from the face of a girl who had just passed away. I hardly knew what I said, but I responded:

"No," I said, "she did not say anything before she died, but she said something this afternoon."

MacLean had no hesitancy in saying he believed the girl received the cyanide of potassium on the Saturday afternoon from a man. He did not say Richeson was the man, but it was plain from the way he spoke that MacLean suspected the minister.

Girl's Talk to Minister.

It was almost a week before the facts as to how Avis Linnell died, and what took place at the Y. M. C. A. building became public. It was Miss Linnell's father who called Richeson on the telephone that night. She described her talk as follows:

"When I got Mr. Richeson I said: 'This is Miss Edmunds at the Y. M. C. A. Boston.' I called you to inform you that

Danish King Frederick's Body on Royal Yacht

Queen Greatly Overcome as Craft Starts on Journey From Germany.

TRAVERSED Germany, May 16.—German guns thundered a requiem salute as the Danish royal yacht Dannebrog sailed from here late afternoon for Copenhagen. The Dannebrog had arrived here from the Danish capital late last night and lay in the harbor with half-masted flags, when the funeral train arrived from Hamburg.

The bereaved Queen was prostrated with grief and was under the care of two physicians. The entire royal suite was in mourning and showed evidence of deep grief. The three royal children were accompanied the Queen, Prince Gustave and Princess Dagmar and Thora, were inconsolable over the death of their father and believed that the private coach in which the coffin was carried from Hamburg to this place should be strewn with white roses.

The coffin containing the royal body was carried from the Hamburg hotel to the Hamburg railway station early in the day, as the train was scheduled to leave at 9 o'clock. The hotel was draped in black and at a very early hour a crowd of curious had gathered to see the cortege leave for the railway station.

Burial Place of Kings.
The last resting place of members of the royal family of Denmark is at Roskilde, about twenty miles from Copenhagen.

LATE KING FREDERICK. AND ROSE KILDE CHURCH, WHERE KINGS ARE BURIED.

Pictures show exterior view of the Cathedral of Roskilde is about twenty miles from the coast from Copenhagen. The cathedral dates back to 1047. Connected with the cathedral is the "Chapel of Kings," the interior of which is here shown, with its black and silver coffins. On the walls are paintings by Munksgaard and Jensen by Rodin.

Roskilde, which is about twenty miles from the coast from Copenhagen.

Roskilde was the ancient capital of Denmark. Its cathedral church dates back to the year 1047. The town itself is of little importance, but the church is one of the most interesting of its kind.

The present office is of brick with dark green roof and gabled spire. Its lofty interior is white with red brick tiling. Opening from the main aisle on either side are the remarkable ornate memorial chapels of Denmark's kings and queens.

In the chapel of the Holy Kings, associated are the monuments of Christian III. and Frederick II. On the central column of this chapel there are some ancient decorations, being no less than marks denoting the heights of several royal persons. Christian I. is head of this, followed closely by Peter the Great, who is marked at 6 feet, 8 1/2 inches tall. The third measurement is capable of proof. It is that of the present ruler, King Christian X. Below these are the names of several other kings.

As Christian IV. was considered Denmark's greatest monarch, so is his chapel the most gorgeous of all. On the walls hang oil paintings by Munksgaard depicting scenes in the life of this king. The coffin, standing between that of his wife and son, is heavily loaded with gold and silver. The doors of the chapel are of silver.

DECLARES DORR WILL GO FREE

Former Mayor Charles Neal Barney of Lynn believes that he has defense which will result in the acquittal of William A. Dorr, accused of the murder of George R. Marshall, the wealthy Lynn newspaper publisher.

Attorney Barney, who is a law partner of Judge Henry T. Lummus, of the Lynn District Court, will appear in court for Barney legal battles in the history of Essex county to free his client. He says that a number of disclosures to be made in the near future will show that Dorr is innocent.

Dorr, who, it was believed, was on the dangerous list in the Salem jail seems to have taken a new lease of life since Attorney Barney has consulted with him. He declares that he is a victim of circumstances and that when he fully recovers he will give a clear account of his doings before and after the death of Marshall.

"I want the public to understand that I have always had an upright life and bear a good reputation in Stockton," said Attorney Barney. "It has been asserted that he associated with a man named Clements, who is awaiting trial for murder in California. This statement is untrue. Dorr has always been a church member and previous to the arrest sang in a choir in Stockton. The feeling of the public is against him, and he is unable to get in contact with his family. He has brought about his nervous condition. The fact is that he is innocent and according to the police, but it is up to them to prove the charge."

"There's a whole lot of time he has spent in the police of this department," said Chief Burdick. "We have a connecting chain of evidence that places him near Mr. Marshall's residence in the murder. We have in our possession correspondence between Dorr and his wife while he was in Lynn. All we ask for now is a trial of the case."

DORR'S WIFE ATTENDS TRIAL

LOS ANGELES, May 16.—Mrs. Clarence R. Dorr is probably the most interested spectator at the trial of her husband, the famous attorney, on a charge of attempting to bribe a juror in the McNamara dynamiting case.

Mr. Dorr, who is in court through the first day's proceedings and said today occupied a seat where he could see and hear everything that took place. She shares Mr. Dorr's confidence that he will be acquitted.

Five men were in the jury box when the trial opened today.

Barney is being defended by Earl Rogers, ex-Judge Cyrus McNutt of Madison, Wis. and by himself. The prosecution is in charge of District Attorney John D. Fredericks, who conducted the McNamara prosecution.

The evidence against Dorr is as strong as it was against the McNamara. Among the witnesses to be called, attorneys for the prosecution declared, would be Mrs. Dorr.

Mr. Dorr, wife of the star witness in the McNamara case, providing she is willing to come from California. Her willingness to be called indicates that she is willing to come from California. Her willingness to be called indicates that she is willing to come from California.

MEN'S "PEERLESS" UNION SUITS

"Peerless" Union Suits for men. Made at Mattapan, in Metropolitan Boston. We are showing a full line of them. Inquiries of the stock, made seen in the Winter-street window of our Men's Store. Was a time when men looked upon Union Suits askance. Combining Shirts and Drawers was a new-fangled idea. The innovation was met with an indifference that was more difficult to overcome than downright opposition would have been. Masculinity is ever slow to experiment with changes that affect its clothes. Force of habit influences men to cling to old styles, even if new ones are more comfortable, more scientific and more serviceable. "Peerless" Union Suits gradually proved their desirability over detached Shirts and Drawers. Men who tested them skeptically were soon convinced of their advantages. Today those advantages are practically universally admitted and the man-world is being rapidly Union Sued.

We emphasize "Peerless" Union Suits, because we believe them to be the best in material and construction that the money charged for them can command. They are tailored, and fit in the sense that the man who wears them is not conscious of having Underwear on at all.

$1.00 "Peerless" Union Suits—Balmberg, white or ecru; all styles—sleeveless and knee-length, short sleeves and knee-length, long sleeves and ankle length, short sleeves and ankle length.

The composer knelt to sell the song, but the proceedings were in full bloom. The composer knelt to sell the song, but the proceedings were in full bloom.
